HOW TO FIND NEW WAYS TO NETWORK?

Identify your existing networks

- Go through what kind of networks you have already
- Identify what kind of networks you lack and would like to have

Find out what interests you and network related to that

- Make a list of things and topics which you are interested in
- Search events, seminars, workshops and organizations that truly interest you
- Ask from your friends, colleagues and study buddies, if they know something that might interest you

Network everywhere!

- You can network for examples at events, working places, schools, hobbies, voluntary work, civil organizations
- Participate in different kinds of happenings and events, activity of organizations, voluntary work and school activities to network with new people

Open your eyes for interesting opportunities

- Seek channels of information to know what is happening in your area
- Search organizations that regularly share useful information of your field or organize events, workshops or trainings that interest you
- Subscribe to newsletters and email lists of your professional field or area of interest
